

Installation at the No Gun Ri Peace Museum, South Korea. The No Gun Ri Massacre, July 26, 1950, was one of many similar tragedies in which Korean civilians were killed or injured. North Korean soldiers were suspected to have infiltrated parties of civilian refugees. The U.S. response was to strafe all such parties. See p. x, n. 14 for reference.

